

Hi Bob,

I'm pleased to inform you that this has been resolved!

You can now publish books on your website and have them displayed accordingly to your users.

You will notice a Books menu option in your WordPress Dashboard where you can publish books with informations like the book title, its excerpt, genre, cover image, and Author name.

I've also added the link to the "Books" archive page on your website which allows for filtering by genre. Users can easily browse and filter books based on their genres directly from the archive page.

To confirm that the changes have been made, simply visit the Books archive page by either navigating through the menu options on your website or using the direct link here:

<https://bobswebsite.com/books>

You should see the list of all published books and also a new dropdown section "Filter by Genre:" that allows you to select different genres. By choosing a genre, the list of books will update to show only those that are tagged with the selected genre.

If you have any further questions or need additional adjustments, please don't hesitate to reach out!

Best regards,
Caleb Ameh